

Iran's Beauties in Photos: Upside-Down Tulips

Written by Administrator

Wednesday, 25 April 2018 14:30 - Last Updated Thursday, 26 April 2018 06:33

The flower sprouts on the Iranian plains in mid-March every year. The full bloom of this flower is spectacular, as it creates a red and green carpet. During this period, a lot of travellers visit areas where this wonderful flower blooms.

Upside-down tulips in Khansar of Isfahan province grow at the foot of Golestan Kooh Mountain. Its flowering begins in early May and ends at the end of spring. These tulips, which have a short lifespan, enjoy healing properties for rheumatism and joint pains.

Written by Administrator

Wednesday, 25 April 2018 14:30 - Last Updated Thursday, 26 April 2018 06:33

ISNA PHOTO

Seyyd Vahid Hosseini

Iran’s Beauties in Photos: Upside-Down Tulips

Written by Administrator
Wednesday, 25 April 2018 14:30 - Last Updated Thursday, 26 April 2018 06:33

Iran’s Beauties in Photos: Upside-Down Tulips

Written by Administrator

Wednesday, 25 April 2018 14:30 - Last Updated Thursday, 26 April 2018 06:33

Iran’s Beauties in Photos: Upside-Down Tulips

Written by Administrator

Wednesday, 25 April 2018 14:30 - Last Updated Thursday, 26 April 2018 06:33

